All American Volunteers

American High School Junior Varsity Basketball team

The Junior Varsity Basketball team at American High School in Fremont recently came to Tri-City Volunteers to help us out over the holidays. According to team Coach Ed Villatoro, the team researched various volunteer opportunities in the Tri-Cities area and discussed who they would like to help. The team voted to spend their time with TCV, volunteering at the food bank.

During their busy day at TCV the team helped with various jobs of loading, packing and sorting food items. The strong men of the basketball team really made a difference and were obviously well coordinated and worked as a winning team. Coach Villatoro commented on how glad he was to have the opportunity to help and said "Anytime the team can get together and work on something other than basketball it helps reinforce the team feeling of unity and makes us play better. Teams who work well together off the court are obviously much better prepared to becoming winners on the basketball court."

At TCV we coordinate hundreds of volunteers a year and have them work as a team. Without teamwork we just couldn't do what we do. Bryan Bevers, Executive Director, says "We are grateful to American High and Coach Villatoro for bringing his team to Tri-City Volunteers". All of us at TCV wish the American Junior Varsity Basketball team a fantastic season and we cheer them on to a big winning season. In our book they are already a winning championship team!
